

into the specification following the first reference in the specification to that table. Some of the original drawings contained both a text part and a drawing part, usually a part A and part B. In such cases, the text part was made into a table and the drawing part retained as a drawing.

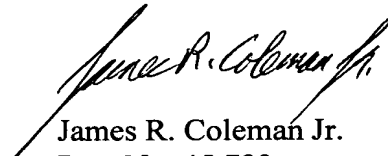

Those drawings not integrated into the specification as text tables have been renumbered. References in the specification to drawings and tables have been changed, accordingly, to reflect that the numbers on the drawings and tables have been changed. It is respectfully requested that the revised number of the drawings be accepted.

The order of references to drawings and the tables was altered to put all references in ascending order. In the previously-submitted specification, FIG. 37 was the first drawing referenced. The text and drawing became Table 1 and FIG. 1 and the references were changed to match.

No new matter has been introduced into the specification.
